Interest rates

32. Three-, six-, or twelve-month Euribor is the interest rate for the euros, used by leading banks on the European money market to offer each other three-, six-, or twelve-month term deposits. Euribor is disclosed on the website of Thomson Reuters or its replacement site according to the money market rules, as well as on the bank's website www.seb.ee. Euribor applicable to the agreement is published in the client's internet bank.
33. The bank replaces the base interest rate with a reasonable new base interest rate of their choosing and, if necessary, changes the terms of interest calculation if:
 - 33.1. the base interest rate is unavailable;
 - 33.2. it is or will no longer be published;
 - 33.3. using the base interest rate is not allowed;
 - 33.4. the methodology for calculating it has changed significantly; or
 - 33.5. if it is not possible to apply the base interest rate due to other circumstances not controlled by the bank.The bank will notify the client of the date of commencement of the new base interest rate (replacement date). Within 60 days from the date of receipt of the notice or, if a fixed base interest rate is applied, from the date of its expiry, the client may cancel the agreement without paying the early repayment fee by notifying the bank in advance and fulfilling all contractual obligations. If the client does not fulfil all contractual obligations within the above-mentioned 60 days, the new base interest rate will apply on the replacement date.

If the base interest rate cannot be used, then the most recent available fixing of existing base interest rate will apply to the interest until

- the replacement date or
- the change in the interest rate after the base interest rate becomes available again.

If the most recent available fixing of existing base interest rate or the new base interest rate is negative, then the interest is equal to the interest margin.

34. Fixed base interest rate is the interest rate quoted for loans issued in euros at the international money markets on the date of entry into force of the agreement or the annex hereof. Fixed base interest rate is disclosed on the website of Thomson Reuters, or its replacement site.
35. Market interest rate is the fixed interest rate quoted for loans issued in euros on the international money market for the period remaining until the end of validity of the fixed base interest rate. The client may ask the bank to quote the market interest rate at any time.

Interest calculation

36. The bank calculates and the client pays interest on the outstanding part of the loan for each previous interest period.
37. An interest period begins on the interest payment date and ends on the day preceding the next interest payment date.
38. The first interest period begins on the date of disbursement of the loan or its part and the last interest period ends on the day preceding the loan repayment date.
39. Interest calculation ends on the day preceding the day of cancelling the agreement, specified in the cancellation notice.
40. The bank fixes the Euribor based on the Euribor valid two business days prior to fixing.
41. Initially, the bank fixes the Euribor for the next three-, six-, or twelve-month period (during which the Euribor will not change) on the day the agreement or its annex enters into force.
42. Following that, the bank fixes the Euribor on the interest payment day immediately preceding the passing of the current respective Euribor period.
43. Going forward, the bank fixes the Euribor on the third, six, or twelfth interest payment date following the previous Euribor fixing day.
44. If the Euribor fixing day falls on a holiday, the bank fixes the Euribor on the first business day following it.
45. During the validity of a fixed base interest rate, the client will pay the interest difference fee on the day when
 - 45.1. the client repays the loan in full or in part to the bank before the loan repayment date;
 - 45.2. the fixed interest rate prematurely changes into an unfixing interest rate;
 - 45.3. the validity period of the fixed base interest rate is reduced; or
 - 45.4. the bank cancels the agreement.
46. The bank calculates the interest difference fee on the outstanding loan or prematurely repaid loan for the period between the interest difference fee payment date and the end of validity of the fixed base interest rate. The bank bases its calculation on the market interest rate valid on the interest difference fee payment date.
47. The annual interest difference fee rate is calculated by subtracting the market interest rate from the fixed base interest rate.
